Marshall Tells Of Black Dec. 7

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Gen. Marshall told the Pearl Harbor investigators today Adm. Harold R. Stark thought warnings to Pacific commanders on Dec. 7, 1941, would "only confuse them." So Stark, then chief of naval operations, at first opposed sending such warnings after it became clear that trouble was brewing for the United States that day, Marshall told the Senate-House committee investigating the attack.

Marshall, wartime Army chief of staff, testified he called Stark back on the White House telephone, however, and insisted on sending the messages. Then the admiral conceded, Marshall said, and asked, that the Army warnings be amended so that naval officers at Pacific outposts would be advised.

Stark, later naval chief in the European theater of operations, was a spectator as Marshall testified. The hearing was late in starting because the committee met in secret to decide on the relevancy of evidence.

Later, Chairman Barkley (D.) of Kentucky said the discussion was about the letter Marshall sent to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, 1944 Republican presidential candidate, urging him not to disclose during his campaign that the U. S. had cracked Jap codes before the Pearl Harbor attack. Dewey complied.

Barkley said that exchange would be brought up in later testimony.

Marshall reconstructed for the committee how he spent the fateful morning of Dec. 7 four years ago today.

Marshall told the committee it was not until he reached his office that he learned of Japan's final diplomatic note to Secretary Hull, indicating a break with the U. S. The note, intercepted and decoded, was sent to Japanese "peace envoys" with instructions to deliver it to Hull at 1 p. m. (Washington time) the hour of the assault on Pearl Harbor.

"On that morning," Marshall related, "I had breakfast about 8 o'clock. Then I went riding.

"I must have ridden later than 8:30. I suppose I read the Sunday papers and then went riding. My rides usually were about 50 minutes.

"While I was taking my shower, word came that Col. (R. S.) Bratton had something very important and wished to come out to Ft. Myer. I told him I was coming to the War Department directly.

"My shower probably took 10 minutes. On my arrival there, Bratton handed me these intercepts. When I reached the end, and it was a long message, some of which I read twice, on the next sheet was the 1 o'clock message.

"That, of course, was an indication to me of some very definite action—1 o'clock on a Sunday in Washington, involving the Secretary of State, was very unusual.

"I called Stark and he said he had seen it.

"I proposed messages to the Pacific commanders. Stark felt we might confuse them. I hung up the White House telephone

Glutton for Grief

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (INS)—Hazen Hayward was slow getting the point today though it penetrated twice.

A drug clerk, he returned from work and quarreled with his wife, Bonita. She stabbed him in the arm.

He went to Roosevelt Hospital, was treated and returned home. The quarrel resumed. This time Hazen was stabbed in the chest.

Bonita was arrested on a felonious assault charge. Hazen returned to the hospital and said he would stay there.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—FBI disclosed today more than 1500 enemy agents were arrested in the Western Hemisphere during the war. The list included spies, saboteurs and propagandists.

Some of the arrests were made by local authorities in South and North America, others by FBI.

Searches of alien enemy premises in the United States uncovered 3127 short-wave radio receivers, 2240 sticks of dynamite, 4626 firearms, 306,247 rounds of ammunition and other contraband, FBI said.

Late Again!

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Four years ago today American defenders were slow in coming to grips with attacking Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

Today, the Senate-House committee investigating that catastrophe was half an hour late in meeting.

Byrnes Brands Hurley China Charges False

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Sec. Byrnes hit back sharply at Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley today for his attacks on State Department foreign service diplomats, and asserted Hurley had failed to sustain his charges. Byrnes appeared before the Senate foreign relations committee which has been looking into the background of Hurley's abrupt and dramatic resignation last week as ambassador to China.

Byrnes specifically upheld the two "career men" whom Hurley has charged with seeking to sabotage his efforts to bring about a unified China while he held the Chungking post. Hurley assailed this conduct as "disloyalty."

Byrnes told the committee:

"Ambassador Hurley has not furnished me, nor do I understand taht he has furnished the committee, any specific evidence to prove that any employe was guilty of such conduct."

Hurley was in the audience as Byrnes began his testimony and listened intently from a front-row seat.

Byrnes also challenged Hurley's assertion that during his service as ambassador to Chungking he had been unable to get a public statement of American policy toward China from President Truman, Sec. Byrnes or other ranking officials.

Byrnes said Hurlty had never asked him for such a statement nor made a written request for it to the State Department so far as Byrnes had been able to find out.

Byrnes said he also asked President Truman whether Hurley requested a China policy statement from him and the President "does not recall such a request."

Byrnes appeared after Hurley had spent two days attacking State Department career diplomats and specifically accusing George Atcheson and John Service, formerly on duty in China, of having worked against Hurley's efforts to unify the Chinese central government and the Chinese Communists.

The Secretary of State declared that while every American foreign service officer must administer "the declared policy of his government" he should "not hesitate to express his views" when he believes changed conditions require it.

Hurley had assailed the assignment recently of Atcheson and Service as political advisers to Gen. MacArthur at Tokyo, but Byrnes said "men who have rendered loyal service to the government cannot be dismissed, and their reputations ought not to be destroyed, on the basis of suspicions entertained by any individual."

The documents which Byrnes

Big 5 Foreign Chiefs to Meet?

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—A foreign office spokesman said today Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was expected to make an announcement, possibly late today, about a possible meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia, France and China.

Reports circulated in well-informed quarters that the five foreign ministers might meet in Moscow soon.

Such a meeting would be the first for the foreign ministers since their inconclusive conference in London last October.

The London Evening Star said it was understood a proposal for the meeting came from Moscow.

Warns on Flood Pollution of Food

Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, City Health Commissioner, issued a awrning this afternoon that all home-canned foods should be removed at once from the thousands of flooded cellars in and around Boston.

"There is danger contaminated water from overtaxed sewers may contain pestilential germs, and contents of all jars into which water may have seeped should be destroyed immediately," he declared.

He also advised a good swabbing with clean water and disinfectant as soon as waters recede from inundated basements.

Army Announces Officer Cutbacks

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Army will have about 500 fewer generals at the end of this month than it had at its peak strength of 1540 last July.

The War Department also announced today further details of a cut in the general officer roster through retirements and reduction of wartime rank.

With the roster reduced to 1040 by the end of the month, the Army plans a continued cut-back which will place the total of generals at 540 next June, when the size of the Army will be reduced to 1,630,000. This will compare with about 100 general officers on duty prior to Pearl Harbor.

SAN SALVADOR, Dec. 7 (AP)—Strong earth shocks collapsed some old walls in this capital between 2:39 and 7:43 a. m. today, the National Observatory said. No casualties were reported.

Rain Floods Cellars, Ties Rail Traffic

Inundating streets, flooding thousands of cellars and disrupting highway and train transportation in Greater Boston, the second northeast storm to lash New England within a week today drenched the area with more than three inches of rain, causing three deaths, countless accidents and heavy property damage.

The South Shore was hardest hit, with flood damage at Weymouth Landing alone estimated at more than $100,000 as cellars and streets in the business district were filled with water.

Train service on the Old Colony line of the New Haven R. R. was seriously hampered by washouts. Near Beaver Dam crossing, south of North Scituate, flood waters gouged out a 70-foot section, and five smaller washouts were reported between Beechwood and North Scituate.

Buses were pressed into service to transport passengers from Scituate to Cohasset because of the washouts. Passengers then returned to trains to continue their trip to Boston. Trains were running more than 30 minutes late.

On the Gloucester branch of the Boston & Maine, a series of mudslides delayed traffic. Chief trouble was at West Gloucester and Magnolia where only one track was safe.

Passengers from Beverly, Salem, Swampscott and Lynn were given normal service by stopping through trains from Portland and Portsmouth at those stations. Normal service was expected to be restored today.

The Boston rainfall in 24 hours totaled 3.06 inches. A record-breaking fall of 6.21 was reported at Gloucester.

Police, fire and water departments were swamped with requests to have flooded cellars pumped out. In the Dunn rd. section of Revere, police used boats to transport residents across more than 18 inches of water in the streets.

Three or four feet of water was reported in many cellars in the southeast section of Medford. In Melrose, householders who never had flooded cellars before said the water was more than two feet deep.

The Lynn fire department had three crews working since 2 a. m. pumping out cellars. In Cambridge, 40 city workers were detailed to clearing cellars, including that of Kelley Grammar School, Willow st., where 15 inches of water was reported.

The dead in the storm included Philip Williams, Sydney, N. S., drowned when his boat went aground at Portsmouth, N. H.; Peter Argeroupoulous 72, Ipswich, hit by an auto on Topsfield rd., Ipswich, and Pvt. Donald G. Gunsallus, Altoona, Pa., Army MP killed in the crash of an ambulance on Chelsea bridge.

The weatherman predicted the storm would diminish to intermittent drizzle and give way to cloudy skies tomorrow, with no change in temperature.

Coast Guard craft were sent to the aid of a fishing vessel aground off Provincetown, where winds up to 45 miles an hour were reported.

Rivers Rising Fast In New Hampshire

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 7 (AP) —Rivers in northern New Hampshire are rising as result of the heavy rains, the Weather Bureau reported today after a statewide survey.

It estimated that within the next 48 hours rivers would go up three to six feet. The Baker river in the Warren area was reported most seriously affected, with five foot rise at Plymouth.

A similar rise was expected in the Merrimack by Sunday.

Hunt Wide Area For Six Planes

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP) —A vast sea and air armada was ordered out today to scan 100,000 square miles of the Atlantic in a last chance effort to rescue 27 men who disappeared with a formation of five Torpedo bombers and a missing search plane.

The Navy alone ordered 248 planes into the air, while 18 surface craft, numerous merchant ships and other searchers made it probably the biggest rescue effort of peacetime.

The missing officers and men were identified by Seventh Naval District public relations officers. They included Sgt. Robert Francis Gallivan, USMC; mother, Mrs. Lorraine Gallivan, 35 Park st., Northampton, Mass.

Two clues seemed sufficiently definite to remove some of the mystery that cloaked the disappearance of the entire formation of bombers, carrying 14 men, and the rescue craft that joined them Wednesday with 13 men on board.

A passing ship, the Gaines Mills, reported an explosion at sea Wednesday, and what appeared to be an airplane falling. That may have been the fate of the search craft.

The airport weather station at Miami reported a large area of turbulent air rolled out of a storm centered over Georgia, swept over Jacksonville about noon and reached Miami by nightfall.

A meteorological freak—squalls on the surface, 40-mile winds at 1000 feet, and full hurricane of 75 miles an hour at 8000 feet—was recorded at 4 p. m. Such a development could easily have carried the torpedo planes miles out of their practice area.

One of the occupants killed in the crash of an American C-47 in Argentina was Cpl. David S. Kellogg, Crafts st., Newton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kellogg.

A member of the Army Air Force for three and a half years, Kellogg previously was a student at the University of Vermont. His father is telegraph editor of the Boston Traveler.

Ransom Bid Is Branded Cruel Hoax

Dismissing it as "a cruel hoax," Chelsea police today waved aside the ransom telephone call made last night to Mrs. Rose Carlan, mother of kidnaped Ronald Carlan, 6 months, and doggedly followed other clues, hoping, meanwhile, the offer of Abp. Cushing to act as an intermediary with the abductor would induce him—or her—to make amends.

A flurry of excitement was added to the kidnaper search today when Mrs. Helen Bennett, 28, of Broadway, Cambridge, told police a baby of six months had been left with her Nov. 26 by a woman who offered her $10 a week to care for it.

Chelsea police found it was not the Carlan infant. It added a second baby mystery to the local scene, nevertheless, for the woman identified herself as "Mrs. Nolan" and said she worked for the Hood Rubber Co., in Watertown, whereas Mrs. Bennett made inquiry there and told police no such person was listed on the payroll. She said the woman returned to see the baby Saturday, remained all night and left without meeting her financial obligations.

With regard to the ransom demand, Chelsea police said they had reason to bracket it with "crank" communications they had received. Mrs. Carlan's husband, James, is a Navy machinists mate, with an income hardly enough to interest a professional kidnaper.

The telephone caller, now identified as a man instead of a woman, asked the grieving and exhausted mother for $1000. Shortly before the call, Abp. Cushing volunteered his good offices in the case. He promised to allow the kidnaper to go secretly to his home, 2101 Commonwealth ave., and pave the way for restoration of the baby.

He also directed the hundreds of parish priests throughout the archdiocese to act accordingly. The archbishop added:

"Either he (the parish priest) or I will treat the visit as a conscience matter and will collaborate fully in getting the baby back to his parents."

Chelsea police and state detectives were investigtaing tips and clues in Salem, Randolph, Cambridge and the South End. They also returned to Mansfield, where they had been drawn early in the case by reports of "the woman in black" and her eccentric actions while carrying a raby in her arms the day of the kidnaping, Nov. 28. This time they were searching for a demented woman who has been known to have talked incessantly about a baby since the case broke.

In Randolph they sought a childless woman who was quoted as declaring, "I will get a baby even if I have to steal one."

Lt. Kirby, who has been in charge of the search since the baby was snatched from his carriage across the street from the Carlan home nine days ago, said he believed the child was still alive and was in the care of "some misguided woman, probably one who has longed for the love of a child."

RONALD CARLAN

He said he was at no time authority for published statements that the child is no longer in Chelsea.

"This is no time for anyone to play Halloween tricks on the telephone," Kirby said in revealing that Chelsea police have had several "crank" calls on the case.

"Anyone who has any clues in the case which seem worth while is asked to call Chelsea police and not to bother the family of the baby."

Mrs. Rose Carlan, Ronnie's mother, was reported so upset by the ransom telephone call today that she was unable to talk to police officers.

Yamashita Has Three Appeals From Gallows

MANILA, Dec. 7 (AP)—A five-general U. S. military commission on this Pearl Harbor anniversary decreed death by hanging for Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita. Still protesting that "my conscience is clear," the conqueror of Singapore and former Jap commander in the Philippines was returned to new Bilibid prison. There he will await review of the court's findings.

There was no indication when the sentence might be carried out. Yamashita has an appeal on jurisdictional grounds pending with the U. S. Supreme Court. He can appeal to Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, Army commander in the western Pacific; to Gen. MacArthur, Allied commander in the Pacific; and to the U. S. Supreme Court.

He listened stony-faced as the court held him responsible for permitting "a series of atrocities and high crimes by Japanese armed forces" under his command.

Before hearing the verdict, the stocky defendant stood, visibly nervous, while an interpreter read this statement to the court:

"I wish to stand here today with a clear conscience and swear to God I am innocent of these charges.

"I wish to take this opportunity to express gratitude to the United States officers of the defense, brilliant and upright officers.

"I want to thank the commission for a fair trial."

When the commission was ready to pronounce sentence, the three-star general was led before the bench.

The finding:

"This commission finds that a series of atrocities and high crimes were committed by Japanese armed forces under your command against nationals of the United States and its Allies and dependencies.

"During the period in question you failed to provide effective control of your troops as required by the circumstances. Accordingly, on a secret ballot, two-thirds or more of this commission concurring, this commission finds you guilty as charged and sentences you to death by hanging."

18-Year Term For Killer of Waitress

Allowed by the court to plead guilty to manslaughter, Joseph Tortora, 25, of Orange st., Roslindale, today was sentenced by Suffolk Superior Judge Hanify to 18 to 20 years for the slaying of Mrs. Isabelle Patterson, 44-year-old South End waitress.

Tortora had been on trial on a charge of first degree murder all week when Defense Atty. Francis E. Kelly asked if the court would accept a plea of guilty to manslaughter.

When the court agreed, Prosecutor Garrett Byrne asked for a substantial sentence, saying, "This is one of the most atrocious murders ever committed."

Tortora was trie dby a 14-man jury, the first in Suffolk County since he recently passed law providing additional jurors in first degree murder trials.

Mrs. Isabelle was battered to death in her Tremont st. basement apartmen and her body discoveredt five days laer. During the trial, the prosecution submitted nine pictures portraying how brutally the victim had been beaten.

The battle started, according to testimony, when Tortora suspected the waitress, his girl friend, had another admirer.

See Hope in GM, Union Meeting

DETROIT, Dec. 7 (AP)—An air of optimism for early settlement of auto industry wage disputes continued to pervade Detroit today despite union rejection of another General Motors offer.

The CIO United Automobile Workers again sent its top officials into conference with the corporation, whose offer of a 13½ cent an hour increase was turned down yesterday at the first regular negotiating session since the strike was called Nov. 21.

H. W. Anderson, vice-president, termed the proposal a reinstatement of the pre-strike offer of approximately 10 per cent, which he said would boost wages of GM workers to 30 per cent above the January, 1941, level.

However, Walter P. Reuther, UAW vice president, estimated it would raise the average rate of $1.15 an hour by 11.7 per cent

Trial of Tojo, Others To Open in January

TOKYO, Dec. 7 (AP)—Chief Prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan announced today the first war crimes trials in Japan tentatively were scheduled for January with Warlord Hideki Tojo and his Pearl Harbor cabinet leading the parade of defendants.

"The accused will be presumed innocent until proved guilty," Keenan, Gen. MacArthur's special staff counsel, told a news conference. But he added:

"Japanese war criminals must be punished and humiliated so they will go down in history as ordinary felons of the lowest type."

Prison-bound Marquis Koichi Kido, Emperor Hirohito's closest wartime adviser, labeled Tojo an "indisputable war criminal" in an interview today.

Mention of the former premier brought a swift and direct answer: "Tojo is clearly a war criminal from the standpoint of constitutional government in Japan. I think he is most to blame for the war."

Cute Trick

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 7 (AP) — War-conscious youngsters have added to their repertoire of tricks.

A call to H. F. Santee, grade school principal here, advised him the Portland Army Air base wanted all schools dismissed because "one of our balloons got away and it is loaded with high explosives."

The voice was sweet, feminine and young.

Santee and air base officials agreed the next trick might involve an atomic bomb variation.

Shoe Men Ask Tobin Airport Bus Action

Members of the New England Shoe and Leather Ass'n, pioneers in air travel, today criticized the denial of an airport bus permit to the Elevated and urged Gov. Tobin to provide for adequate airport transportation.

The organization wrote the Governor as follows:

"Our association, representing all companies in the shoe, leather and allied industries, is very much concerned with the decision of your public utilities commission rejecting the application of the Boston Elevated for bus service to and from Logan Airport.

"Our industry, second largest in the Commonwealth, is vitally interested in this matter, as shoe and leather men are among the largest users of air service coming into and leaving Boston.

"Adequate transportation must be provided for the airport and we are convinced that present arrangements are wholy inadequate. Your personal intervention in obtaining proper transportation facilities at the airport is, therefore, respectfully requested in behalf of our entire industry.

"We shall appreciate your advising our association of the action you take in settling this vital problem."

Four Fires Stir Quincy Area

A crying child and a pet dog awakened occupants and led to discovery of two of a series of four fires in Quincy, which gave firemen brisk battles in high winds and caused damage estimated at $25,000.

Mrs. Hector Reid was aroused in her Presidents lane home by cries of her 4-year-old daughter, Sandra, and discovered the two-story house ablaze. Seizing the child, she ran from the house and called to neighbors to give the alarm. Mrs. Reid suddenly remembered she had closed the door, trapping the family's dog Duke in the cellar. She returned and released the dog before firemen arrived.

A $15,000 blaze in the yards of the Quincy Coal Co. in Penn st. for a time threatened destruction of two wooden buildings containing $500,000 worth of coal.

Shortly after 3 a. m., the department was called to battle a blaze at the Warren ave. residence of Mrs. Arthur W. Leverett, who was alone in the house except for her dog Chuck, whose barks awakened her. She was rescued by Lt. John Quinn of Engine 4 after she had remained to telephone the alarm. Damage was estimated at $7000.

A fourth fire in an Albertini st. dwelling was extinguished without heavy damage.

Pearl Harbor Observes Day

By DON WHITEHEAD

PEARL HARBOR, Dec. 7 (AP)—Four years ago the watery, chaotic graveyard of America's battle fleet; today the home base of the mightiest sea power in the world. That is the story of Pearl Harbor on this fourth anniversary of the Japanese bid to sweep the United States from the Pacific.

Soldiers, sailors, marines and civilians joined today in solemn tribute to those who died beneath the Japs' first blow.

Virtually the only reminders today of the disaster that struck Dec. 7, 1941, are the rusting, barnacled sections of unsalvaged ships in the harbor, and the rows of crosses gleaming white against the green hillside rising above the placid waters of the harbor.

Navy men and islanders went about their business as usual today, with only simple ceremonies to mark the date. In Honolulu, Christmas shoppers continued to crowd streets gay with colored lights, tinsel and pictures of fat St. Nick.

But none here could forget the day and its significance.

Nor were those who died forgotten. Requiem mass was scheduled at 9:30 a. m. at Pearl Harbor's Bloch Arena. Scores of servicemen and civilians also were expected to gather in Halawa Naval Cemetery for Jewish, Catholic and Protestant services, and to hear a commemorative speech by Rear Adm. E. W. Hanson, naval base commandant.

Tobin, Race Board Hit for Track Loss

Gov. Tobin and the State Racing Commission were responsible for loss of $2,500,000 in revenue to the State, Rep. Louis Lobel, Republican of Boston, charged today at a public hearing.

Lobel, testifying before the committee investigating racing and race revenue, referred to the racing commission's cut in the number of racing days allowed dog tracks. The cut was made after the Governor recommended it on the ground such racing was detrimental to public morals.

The slash was not beneficial to public morals, Lobel contended, but was "driving Massachusetts money into other states."

Lobel declared the racing commission should be investigated.

Allan MacLeod of Newton, chairman of the Metropolitan Riding Club of Boston, a harness racing group, urged that this type of racing be implemented with legalized betting to increase the state's revenue.

Sen. William R. Conley of Chelsea and Rep. Edward Mulligan of Boston defended racing as a legitimate business and said they were opposed to reducing the number of dog racing days.

The committee also heard recommendations that the state increase its "take" of 3½ per cent to 7 per cent.

Kills Girl, Self After Quarrel

GLOUCESTER, Dec. 7 — The murder-suicide of Miss Frances Scola, 23, and Joseph M. Burke, 30-year-old fisherman, whose bodies were found in her Rogers st., third-floor apartment, climaxed an hour of bitter argument, detectives reported today.

Police were summoned to the scene by Mrs. Josephine Pinkham, the landlady.

Miss Scola, a bullet wound in the back of her head, was dead on the floor. Burke's body was lying beside it.

Investigators said Burke, separated from his wife, who lives in another section of town, had returned only three days ago from a fishing trip.

The Scola girl, a fish plant worker, rented the apartment several months ago, Mrs. Pinkham said.

Dr. Ira B. Hull, medical examiner, ruled Miss Scola's death murder and Burke a suicide.

CPO JOSEPH SOWA

HE MUST PAY—CPO Joseph Sowa told Chicago court he had been away 11 months and felt it improble that he was the father of his wife's child. He named a soldier as baby's dad. Judge Frank M. Padden said it was possible the baby was Sowa's and ruled Sowa must pay $25 monthly support to his wife. International News Photos

Curley Client Got 'Money's Worth'

By STEPHEN B. O'LEARY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—H. Donald Forse, Indiana manufacturer agreed under cross-examination in the trial of Cong. James M. Curley and four others that he felt he had gotten his $4500 worth out of Engineers Group, Inc., although he never got the money back nor did they deliver any contracts.

Curley and the others are charged with violating the mail fraud statutes in the operations of Engineers Group, Inc. The 71-year-old mayor-elect of Boston was absent from court today for the first time since the start of the trial, having left to spend the week-end at home.

Forse testified he began negotiations with Engineers Group in December, 1941, seeking to obtain war contracts, since his own laundry and dry-cleaning machinery business was falling off steadily.

He said he first met defendants James G. Fuller and Donald Wakefield Smith, former NLRB member, in Chicago through a business friend and as a result went to Washington and further discussions led to an agreement between the group and his corporation Dec. 19.

He paid $3750 of a $7500 fee to the group in cash and gave a note for the rest with the understanding the group would obtain contracts. He later renewed the note for $3000, paying $750 more to the group. He said he never got a contract, never got the money back and never asked for it because the group had discontinued.

"Didn't you say last summer that you felt your company had gotten its money's worth?" he was asked in cross-examination.

"I said I thought Engineers Group had tried hard to get some work for us," he replied.

"But didn't you say that Fuller must have spent at least $4500 in traveling, telephoning and other expenses seeking contracts for you?"

"I said he must have spent considerable. Probably that much."

"You have no doubt you got your money's worth?"

"I never complained."

"You even said you'd like to have Fuller for your sales manager?"

"That's what I said. I think the man has a great deal of ability."

He also agreed in crossexamination Fuller had directed him to bids on two subcontracts with the Willys Overland Co. on manufacturing core boxes for 20 and 37-millimeter fuses, but the bids were rejected.

In his direct examination, Forse testified in addition to Fuller and Smith he had met Cong. Curley and defendants J. Barton Underwood and Bert Hall. Underwood and Hall, he said, had accompanied Fuller on a visit to his plan in January, 1942, but the former had taken no active part in the business dealings.

He said he met Curley in an anteroom of the Engineers Group office on his Washington visit and talked with him for an hour while waiting to see Fuller. Over vigorous defense objections, he testified Curley told him of a contract for manufacture of high octane gasoline for the Air Corps which had been arranged for a friend of the congressman.

Judge Proctor adjourned the court at 1 p. m. until Monday.

Hindsight

Hand pumps sold like tickets to the Army-Navy game today in Quincy hardware stores as householders worked to clear flooded cellars.

One store owner, his stock exhausted, went to his Southern Artery home and found two feet of water in his own basement.

He spent the rest of the day trying to buy a pump.

Finds Wife Twice In Sailor's Arms, Wins Divorce

Finding his bride in bed twice with a sailor—and the same sailor at that—was just more than Walter N. Jacobus, 25, of Matchet st., Brighton, could stand, he testified today. His story won him a divorce in Suffolk Probate Court from 22-year-old Dale Leonard Jacobus of Washington, D. C.

Jacobus, a medically discharged Marine, told Judge John V. Mahoney he joined the Marines in June, 1942, in Boston, and invited his bride to come to his base at Pensacola, Fla., to spend Christmas.

He said she reached there Christmas Eve and registered at a hotel. But when he hurried off duty early he found his bride cuddled up with a sailor, he testified.

Jacobus added that he threw the sailor out and told his wife to go back in Boston, but relented after she pleaded for two hours that she had become intoxicated and it all was just a bad dream.

But two nights later, he continued, he visited the hotel again and there they both were. He said he threw the same sailor out again, and this time threw his wife after him.

Judge in Nurse's Role for Witness

Judge Samuel Eisenstadt of Roxbury district court came into Suffolk probate court to plead a case today and ended up as a very obliging—and efficient—nursemaid.

Mrs. Marion E. Brumfield of Bromley pk., Jamaica Plain, came to the stand to testify in behalf of her mother, Mrs. Dorothy F. Hawkes of Park st., Jamaica Plain, who was granted a divorce for cruelty from Russell J. Hawkes.

Mrs. Brumfield took the stand with her 10-day-old baby in her arms, and looked around helplessly as the clerk asked her to raise her right hand. Judge John V. Mahoney asked for volunteers and Judge Eisenstadt stepped forward—doing a thorough job of cuddling the infant until the mother completed testimony.

FOUND—Mother of Carolyn Greene (above), 16-year-old South Lancaster Academy student who disappeared Monday, told the Boston American her daughter telephoned after she read news account of her disappearance. She said she had a job in Boston and didn't want to go back to school.

Woman in Car Chases, Crushes Hubby to Death

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 7 (AP) —Accused of killing her husband by chasing him with her automobile, running him down, and pinning him against a cellar door, Mrs. Geneva Humphrey, 47, was held on a murder charge today.

Jasper G. Kirchner, assistant to the prosecutor, said the husband, Hugh Edwin Humphrey, 43, was killed in an alley in Singac early today.

Kirchner said Mrs. Humphrey had been jealous because her husband had been out with another woman.

The Humphreys had an argument in a taproom which ended in Mrs. Humphrey pursuing her husband through the alley, crushing him to death, said Kirchner.

Kirchner said Mrs. Humphreys left the taproom before her husband and when he came out with another man, she headed the car toward them jumping the curb.

The husband's companion jumped out of the way, Kirchner said, and Humphreys started to run up the alley with Mrs. Humphreys in pursuit in the car. She trapped him between a cellar door and an ash pile where he was killed almost instantly.

INGENIOUS—Time spent holding a bottle for his baby, Nancy Lee Bloom, was utilized by former Marine Alan D. Bloom, of Los Angeles, to invent this ingenious bottle holder which he calls a feederette. The baby seems to enjoy the innovation. AP Wirephoto

SEAMAN'S BONDS STOLEN

Dulles Outlines U. S. Aid Policy

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—John Foster Dulles, advisor to Sec. Byrnes at the London conference, said today the United States should adopt "a simple, publicly-defined policy" toward extension of material aid to other nations, in order to avoid ill-will.

"The inevitable disappointment of many hopes could make us the object of well-night universal jealousy and dislike," he said. "That sort of spiritual isolation involves danger from which no world organization, no armament, could protect us."

His address was delivered before the National Ass'n of Manufacturers.

Urges State Probe Waterfront Lease

The Port Authority's action in leasing the E st., South Boston, warehouse occupied for 22 years by Wiggin Terminals, Inc., a waterfront corporation, to C. Pappas & Co., a —grocery concern, without allowing competitive bidding, should move Gov. Tobin to do more than investigate its financial Roscoe H. Prior, stevedoring company head, declared today.

Prior is president of the American Stevedoring Corp. here, big employer of longshoremen, and president of the National Ass'n of Stevedores.

Referring to Tobin's announcement he would look into the financial features of the lease, Prior said:

"The governor should also insure that the warehouse will be used 100 per cent for water-borne cargo, as it has been since it was constructed in World War I. It is regrettable any waterfront facility should be lost in whole or in part at a time when the port is trying to hold what business it has and attract more commerce. Waterfront property should be used only for water-borne commerce.

"I urge that all leases and sales of publicly-owned waterfront property should be widely advertised and made subject to competitive bidding."

The Wiggin Corp., through its president, Sherman L. Whipple, Jr., has formally protested to the Port Authority that it was given no hearing. Whipple said the directors had voted to discontinue employment of equipment to fumigate cotton imports at the warehouse, and that he saw no reason to continue using similar equipment at the corporation's Charlestown warehouse.

This is the only adequate equipment in Boston for the federally stipulated fumigation of foreign cotton.

Judge John C. Papas, treasurer of the Pappas Corp., has retorted it offered to rent space to the Wiggin Corp. for less than its proportionate cost to the new lease-holder, that his corporation will pay taxes to the city, whereas the Wiggin firm, operating only on a permit, was tax free, and that means will be found to fumigate imported bales.

The Port Authority is due to consider the Wiggin protest at its next meeting in a few days.

Nationalists Reach Outskirts of Mukden

CHUNGKING, Dec. 7 (AP)—Nationalist vanguards have reached the outskirts of Mukden, and are expected to enter that vital Manchurian industrial city before Dec. 10.

Hull Praises British Loan as Peace Aid

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Former Sec. Cordell Hull today endorsed the Anglo-American loan and trade deal as a step in building world peace.

In a statement issued through the State Department, Hull declared the nation may be now confronted with its "final opportunity to make a peace that will last.

He said that through the American government's policy to grant Britain a $4,400,000,000 loan and Britain's agreement to work for freer international trade, "our country is taking another long step forward to build a better world by profiting from the bitter lessons of the past."

"I feel," he continued, "this may be our final opportunity to make a peace that will last. I believe the government's overall plans released yesterday set forth the prerequisites to economic prosperity and improved standards of living in our own and all other countries.

"I have high hopes that the United States will play its full part in bringing about the conditions necessary for full prosperity and lasting peace.'

Hull's statement was issued as the Administration marshaled arguments behind the big credit offer to Britain, convinced any major congressional change would imperil hopes for Anglo-American trade co-operation.

The agreement calls for a $3,750,000,000 cash loan and a $650,000,000 settlement for post-war lend-lease and war surpluses. Both would be repaid at two per cent interest over a 50-year period beginning in 1951.

Only the outright loan needs congressional approval, but every sign pointed to a bitter struggle. Harsh words were heard from a House Democrat as well as two Republicans even before the credit agreement was officially announced.

2 Conservatives Move To Block U. S. Loan

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Two Conservatives in Parliament offered a motion today to disapprove the proposal for a $4,400,000,000 U. S. loan and to reject ratification of Britain's participation in the Bretton Woods monetary agreement.

The motion was offered by Robert Boothby and Christopher Hollis. Britain's labor government moved rapidly for ratification of the Bretton Woods plan, following completion of negotiations for the loan.

What support Boothby and Hollis could muster was not apparent. Labor spokesmen continued to express confidence both financial measures would be approved by the end of next week.

Indonesians Abduct 140 Europeans

BATAVIA, Dec. 7 (AP)—British authorities said today 140 Europeans, Dutch and Eurasians living in the Indonesian-held section of Bandoeng had been abducted, while 500 other refugees were rescued by Indian troops.

Three Gurkhas were killed and nine wounded in the operation.

RAF Thunderbolts planted 6000 pounds of bombs on lakeside gun postions of Indonesian troops near Ambarawa. A British officer and six men of a 10-man patrol were reported missing from a reconnaissance.

Strike-Bound Men Quit Plant

STAMFORD, Ct., Dec. 7 (AP)—The number of pickets was "sharply" reduced and key personnel were permitted to enter and leave the strike-bound Yale & Towne plant freely today in what appeared to be the first fruits of a seven-hour conference here yesterday between Governor Baldwin, Mayor Charles E. Moore and representatives of labor and management.

At the office main gate, where 30 to 40 pickets have been on duty, there were two, one of them a woman.

Workers walked freely in and out of the gate, and among those who left were some of the 14 superintendents and managers who have been carrying out maintenance duties since Monday.

They authorized the city council to forgive the company—Sharon Steep Corp.—$100,000 in taxes annually for one to five years until the mills make good. Then, they said, taxes will be lowered again.

Gov. Green Raps Truman Foreign Policy

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO, Dec. 7—Gov. Green of Illinois charged before the Republican National Committee today the Truman administration had "suffered the most humiliating defeat in history" by losing "every skirmish" on the international diplomatic front.

In a vigorous prepared address possibly presaging his candidacy for GOP presidential nomination in 1948, the Illinois Governor asserted, "We have been told that we should not raise our voice against the rape of Java by the British and Dutch for fear of offending some voters."

"We have been told," he said, "we must not even protest against the shameful betrayal of Poland for fear of offending Russia's following over here."

The Republicans must make up their minds in the first peacetime meeting of the national committee in four years, he declared, whether they were going to fish or cut bait.

"We must never condone the suppression of liberty in Poland, in the Baltic States, in the Balkans, or in any nation in Europe, Asia, or elsewhere," he declared, adding:

"It must be our vigorous policy to use the leverage afforded by the discussions of forgiveness of lend-lease, or of requests for new loans and every other peaceful means to speed the liberation of the people of these nations."

Herbert Brownell, national committee chairman, predicted the GOP would gain control of the House and Senate in the 1946 elections.

Crippled Ship Reaches N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—The stricken troop transport Navarchos Koundouriotis limped into port today with the aid of a Navy tug and 28 happy GI's who had been three weeks in crossing the Atlantic were taken to Ft. Hamilton for a steak dinner.

The Koundouriotis left Antwerp for New York Nov. 17. It dropped its propeller 320 miles southeast of eNw York city. The tug Alsea took the transport in tow Wednesday.

The Navy said it believed a second troopship in distress, the George W. McCrary, now was safe in Bermuda.

Still a third troopship in distress, the Henry Ward Beecher, is expected to reach Bermuda with 541 soldiers by 2 p. m.

Popular Brand Cigars Due Back

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—Popular brands of medium-priced cigars soon may be in fair supply again.

Gradual return of cigarmakers and discontinuance of government buying, the Cigar Institute of America said, resulted in an October distribution of 24½ per cent above that of the previous year. Tax-paid withdrawals for the month was 513,000,000 domestic and Cuban cigars, highest since December, 1942.

Crippled Hub Trawler Towed to N. S. Port

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 7 (AP)—The Boston trawler Plymouth, left helpless 100 miles off the Nova Scotia coast when nets fouled her propellers, was being towed to Port Hawkesbury today by a Halifax salvage tug.

CZECHS AID YUGOSLAVIA

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (INS)—The Berne radio said today that Czechoslovakia has announced support of Yugoslavia's claims to Trieste.

Common Parking Space Advocated by Flanders

Boston's traffic problems will not be solved by the proposed $50,000,000 arterial highway through the city unless adequate provision for parking is included, such as an extensive parking area under Boston Common, declared Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

Flanders asserted the proposed highway not only would fail to benefit the city, but would even make traffic conditions worse than they are today.

Gov. Tobin approved the recommendation of the State Dept. of Public Works for the highway, which must secure the approval of the Legislature.

Flanders proposed the building of a Route 1 by-pass to keep traffic out of the city. He suggested traffic in and out of the city be speeded up by new arteries provided with adequate parking space. He would also ban the erection of any new business building which required loading and unloading from the sidewalk.

"All these conditions," said Flanders, "can be met by the Atlantic ave. development."

In the meantime Flanders suggested a one-hour parking law in the downtown district, and the speeding up of taxi service efficiency by impounding cars parked in taxi stands and fining the owners.

He said cruising taxis aid to congestion and make it more difficult to find empty cabs.

East Hit Hardest In Sugar Scarcity

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Temporary sugar scarcities will develop in some sections after new ration stamps are validated January 1, OPA warned today.

Sugar will be hardest to find on the east coast, which depends on Caribbean crops not expected to reach substantial value until about March 1, OPA said.

Individual consumer's sugar ration stamp 39 will be valid from January 1 to April 30. It will be good for five pounds. Sugar stamp 38 expires December 31.

Hurley

referred to in the cases of these two men were a telegram to the State Department from Atcheson Feb. 28, 1945, and a memorandum from Service Oct. 10, 1944. Byrnes said Hurley relied most strongly on these two messages for support of his charges against Atcheson and Service.

Byrnes entirely defended the propriety of both communications.

He said Atcheson sent his telegram recommending "a readjustment of our immediate strategy" in China nine days after Hurley had left the Chungking embassy to return to Washington and three days before Hurley arrived in Washington.

He said Atcheson actually proposed the subject of his message be taken up with Hurley and with Gen. Wedemeyer, U. S. commander in China, while they were in Washington.

"There is nothing to indicate he (Atcheson) sought to circumvent his superior in making this report and recommendation," Byrnes said.

Byrnes said the October, 1944, memorandum from Service was "written in forceful language" and recommended a basic change in the U. S. policy toward the central government if China. Byrnes did not particularize what this was, but asserted the policy them and now was to support the central government.

The Service memorandus was addressed to Gen. Stilwell, Wedemeyer's predecessor a sU. S. commander in China, and it was also given to the U. S. embassy in Chungking.

Byrnes remarked pointedly at this particular time Hurley was not the U. S. ambassador to China but the personal representative of President Roosevelt there, and hence he was not in charge of the embassy staff. Also, Service was responsible only to Gen Stilwell.

Byrnes said when the embassy forwarded the service memorandum to Washington it attached its own observation that ervice was only one political observer and when the memorandum passed through the division of Chinese affairs in the State Department, the officers there stated "decisively" that many of Service's conclusions were "incorrect."

Byrnes also reiterated his recent assertions that United States troops are in China "for the sole purpose" of helping with the surrender of Japanese troops there.

He said that because of the way in which the U. S. had supported the central government of China to date "it is difficult to understand Ambassador Hurley's intimation that his failure to achieve a satisfactory settlement of China's internal division resulted from the absence of a public expression of our policy."

Investigating the Investigators

By LORELLE HEARST
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull must have walked a picket fence as a boy in the hills of Tennessee. His early training stood him in good stead in his tightrope walking before the joint congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committe.

Despite reports to the contrary, the 74-year-old statesman looks in perfect health.

His voice is strong. When his temper is aroused, Mr. Hull bursts forth angrily in acid phrases.

His mind is alert. He is quick to correct any question which he feels is not to his liking—or not correct, in his belief.

Mr. Hull's training as a politician is the one characteristic which shows more frequently than any other as he answers questions.

He talks on and on. He seldom comes through with a short, clear answer.

Few witnesses who have appeared before the committee have received the polite treatment accorded the former Secretary of State.

Unlike Cordell Hull, who evaded and skirted answering direct questions, former Ambassador Grew answered nearly all questions put to him with directness and brevity.

But I felt there were too many questions to which he had no answer. Or to too many questions to which his job as ambassador pertained that caused him to say:

"I'm sorry, but I don't remember."

I wondered as I listened to the testimony of the blackest days in our history:

"Could these men, who had the power invested in them to run a nation as great as ours, be so vague and uncertain as to what was going on under their very noses?"

Cong. Gearhart (R.), of California, had Mr. Grew muddled with his cross-questioning. But the committee chairman. Sen. Alben Barkley (D.), of Kentucky, went to the former ambassador's aid by starting an argument with Mr. Gearhart.

Sen. Barkley left the impression that he was supporting those being questioned, rather than the men who were trying to find out the answers.

There is still pitifully little new information coming out.

More Civilian Help Needed at Devens

FT. DEVENS, Dec. 7—Unless more civilians respond to the appeal for clerk-typists, the work of discharging returned soldiers at a local separation center may be considerably delayed, Army officials disclosed today.

Brig. Gen. William C. Crane, post commander, said Ft. Devens separation center is discharging an average of 1500 men daily, and to maintain this rate the military staff would have to be greatly augmented. He said civilian workers were also urgently needed at Lovell General Hospital, the post laundry and the Whittemore Service Command base shop.

Art From Germany Here for Safekeeping

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (INS)—The War Dept. announced today that approximately 200 masterpieces from Germany will arrive in Washington Sunday for safekeeping and in trust for the German people.

The paintings—including works of Boticelli, Van Eyck, Memling, Peter, Rafael, Titian, Giorgone, Rembrandt and Rubens—will be stored at the National Gallery of Art and will not be exhibited at present.

THE HOSPITAL CRISIS

CONDITIONS in many Greater Boston hospitals are increasingly desperate and dangerous.

Due to persistent lack of personnel, entire floors are being closed, operating rooms shut down and beds abandoned.

Dr. Nathaniel W. Faxon, president of the Hospital Council, says:

"The public must be made to realize what closed hospitals, closed operating rooms and long waiting lists for patients will mean to everyone.

"In order to get back to normal and take care of the hundreds of patients needing attention, we must have immediate help.

"Registered graduate nurses, student nurses, Red Cross nurses' aides, orderlies and daytime volunteers are urgently needed to maintain nursing service.

"Maintenance workers, ward maids, cooks and kitchen helpers are also needed to keep our hospitals open."

We unhesitatingly add our voice to this appeal in the hope that all persons educated and trained for usefulness in hospitals will respond to it, willingly and in large numbers. It is a duty which these men and women cannot conscientiously disregard in this emergency.

MEANWHILE, a legislative commission should investigate the whole hospital situation in this Commonwealth.

Why do we train nurses so haphazardly?

Why do we not have pre-nursing courses in all high schools?

Why do we neglect the establishment of schools and colleges properly staffed and equipped for the training of nurses?

Do the existing rules require nurses to be too subordinate to doctors? Are their wages too low and their working hours too long?

These are some of the questions which might be asked in behalf of the people who are supporting hospitals through taxation, Community Funds or personal gifts.

Not even the best or most generously endowed hospital is of much benefit to the public if a shortage of nurses obliges it to lock its doors.

THE LEGISLATIVE commission would also do well to look into the so-called closed staff situation.

At the present time many hospitals permit only staff doctors to use their facilities and bar all others. Consequently many an applicant for a room is told:

"You cannot come here unless you hire one of our doctors. Your own physician hasn't been approved by us."

Of course, the applicant prefers his own physician and resents having to shift to a stranger.

And he is all the more resentful when he realizes that he is contributing to the support of the hospital which he cannot enter unless he submits to arbitrary regulations and arranges for treatment by a doctor who has the good fortune to be on the hospital staff.

It is commonly supposed that any physician licensed to practice medicine or surgery in Massachusetts may care for a patient in the particular hospital which the patient chooses.

But, under the closed staff arrangement, that is not the case. If the physician is not on the staff he has to step aside in favor of one who enjoys this distinction.

Furthermore, if the patient insists on having his own doctor he has to go to another hospital, and it generally does not matter how much money he has contributed to the institution which refuses him a bed.

THE PROPOSED investigation should be thorough and unbiased. Both the medical profession and laymen must have an opportunity to express their views and opinions.

If there are monopolistic practices in our expensively maintained hospitals, they should be promptly eliminated not only in the interest of democracy but for the comfort and welfare of the people.

The dames of France are fond and free
And Flemish lips are willing,
And soft the maids of Italy
And Spanish eyes are thrilling.
Still, though I bask beneath their smile
Their charms they fail to bind me.
And my heart falls back the while
To the girl I left behind me.

THIS BALLAD has been sung by soldiers for nearly 200 years, having been written in Dublin in 1759 by an anonymous composer . . . Note a New Yorker states: "In the eighties you could get a big juicy steak at Smith & McNeil's restaurant near Washington Market for 25 cents and a generous drink of fine Bourbon at Perry's on Park Row for a dime." No doubt you could. But in the eighties the average working man was being paid a dollar a day or six dollars a week. Office workers were not paid much more So in those days a quarter and a dime was of much greater importance to the possessor than now.

BITTER BATTLE: A young old-timer claims the all-time high for bitter football battles was that played between Central and Centennial High Schools of Pueblo, Col. Central High is on the south side of the Arkansas river which splits the town. Centennial is on the north side. The rivalry is terrific. In this game not only the teams and cheering sections battled but the North Side and South Side residents joined in the fray which lasted all night. As a result all athletic contests between the two schools were prohibited for ten years. And even when relations were resumed no football game was permitted.

PASSING BY: Spencer Tracy, Milwaukee's gift to Hollywood and Broadway. The critics didn't enthuse over "The Rugged Path," in which he is starring, but it's a smash hit at the box-office. Reason is that Mr. Tracy is extremely popular with the feminine theatergoers.

Spencer Tracy

He draws the ladies to the box office like the great matinee idols of the yesteryear such as James K. Hackett, Robert Hilliard, Henry E. Dixey, John Barrymore and Forrest Stanley. The last named was Matinee Idol No. 1 on the Pacific Coast. Especially in San Francisco. He never became a New York heart-throb though he did appear on the Broadway stage.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—I claim there was a stage actress whose first name was Gypsy playing on Broadway before Gypsy Rose Lee made her first New York appearance. Am I right? A—I think you are, sir. You are probably referring to that charming actress named Gypsy O'Brien . . .

Q—What is the flower of people born under the sign of Sagittarius? A—The florists say it is the poinsettia. However, my girl friend was born under Sagittarius and though a flower enthusiast, she doesn't like poinsettias.

THAT SHAGGY DOG: Have been asked, what is the original "Shaggy Dog Story?" Couldn't definitely say. First one I heard, which was during World War I, was as follows: "A New York city newspaper carried an advertisement reading: 'Wanted—A shaggy dog.' A man in Omaha who had a shaggy dog brought it to New York to sell but found the advertiser had left for London. The man with the shaggy dog went to London and found the advertiser had left for Paris. In Paris he learned the advertiser had left for Berlin. After having a number of similar disappointments in other cities, the Omaha man finally caught up with the New Yorker in the Balkans and proudly displayed his shaggy dog. The New Yorker looked at the dog and said: 'Sorry. I don't want him. He's not shaggy enough.'"

SIDELIGHTS: Before the war Japan produced over 95 per cent of the silk used in the United States. Now the Nipponese are going to lose much of that business. Californians claim they can produce three crops of silk annually to Japan's one. And that it will be better silk.

STAR: Ever hear of Behidja Hafez? She is Egypt's most popular film star. She is a triple threat; writing, directing and acting in all her pictures. As for her private life, Behidja was first married at the age of 13 and divorced when 15. Since then she was married twice and been divorced twice. That's three marriages and three divorces. The Hollywood record is five marriages and four divorces. Or was up until today.

"What's the matter? Ain't free enterprise what I was fightin' for?"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—Friends, I am telling you, the jam is fixing to bust. I saw it budge. It budged a foot when President Truman, who does seem to have a lot of Spelvin in his makeup, dusted his hands of that conference of the unioneers and business men and took his case to the people by way of Congress.

Westbrook Pegler

To be sure, he went on about fact-finding and his message was another of those political blue-plate specials built around veal but he put the public interest, the rights of the people and the welfare of the nation above the privileges of the union bosses. This is the first time that that equation has been stated by the President of the United States since Franklin D. Roosevelt deliberately set about creating the controls back in 1934.

There is no need of fact-finding as to the faults and dangers that have been imposed on the people during this time. In detail, in specific disputes there are always new and peculiar facts but there are already in existence a number of bodies to sort them out.

Even as Mr. Truman was announcing his new position the National Maritime Union, whose controlling personalities have been consistent in their observance of the Communist line, were running a 24-hour strike ostensibly in sympathy with American soldiers overseas who want to come home.

THERE ARE several items to be remembered in connection with this sudden show of affection for the American soldier. First, Joe Curran, the president of the N. M. U., didn't seem to care how many of them might be slaughtered in a premature assault on the French coast when he and Charlie Chaplin were hollering for a second front to relieve pressure on the Russian armies and save Russian lives.

Second, this union struck ships in New York a few weeks ago in co-operation with the attempt to install Harry Bridges' longshoremen on the Atlantic seaboard and got a bad name with the soldiers overseas whose return was retarded by that tie-up.

This appears to be part of a new propaganda intended to make the soldiers forget that strike.

And third, this is a fine example of that phenomenon which Donald Richberg, the author of the Ball-Burton-Hatch Bill, had described as the political strike.

This is a strike intended to coerce the national government and impose its own will.

THERE IS NO question of wages or hours or working conditions involved in such strikes, although in some cases fake issues touching on such matters are dragged in. In this case the employers have no dispute with the union. It is a strike against the government of the people of the United States.

Another matter that Congress undoubtedly will consider now that the White House has actually invited legislation is the unlimited taxing power of unions, subject to no control or supervision.

These few bosses have the right today to collect income taxes, and they do, which comes before all public taxes and, in some cases, have taken as much as 10 per cent off the top of the victims' earnings.

They collect their own Social Security taxes, too, and divert portions of such collections to foreign causes disguised as relief projects regardless of the desires of the members, who nevertheless will lose their right to work for a living in the United States if they refuse to pay.

They collect political taxes in the same arbitrary way and again, during the recent mayoralty campaign in New York, nominally free Americans had to turn out for political rallies for candidates favored by the union executives or pay fines.

These bodies still collect private tariffs on interstate commerce, a right which the Constitution specifically denies to all of the States themselves, and they openly and arrogantly decide which products may be shipped into certain market areas and which shall be excluded, as Mr. Schwellenbach, the new Secretary of Labor, very well knows because he once was counsellor for Dave Beck of Seattle, who excluded California beer from the Northwest in favor of the resident breweries.

THESE ARE facts that need no finding. They have been on record for years and there is no excuse to continue to rely on the conscience of the union bosses to cease and desist. They won't stop until laws are adopted and enforced and a few of the more arrogant brothers are convicted and sent to prison.

But the jam is beginning to stir. Mr. Truman tickled the key log and the whole thing breathed and heaved and budged.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7—The overwhelming popularity of the "Andy Hardy" series, which Carey Wilson started with Mickey Rooney, has given birth to another new idea on the same order. The new series selected to star Butch Jenkins are the Owen Johnson "Lawrenceville" stories, written in 1890, and will also be produced by Carey.

Lawrenceville, one of the most famous boys' prep schools in America, was the subject of 60 stories in five volumes. Certainly plenty of material. The two characters are John Humperdink Stover and Doc Mac Mooder. The first of the Lawrenceville stories will be called "The Great Little Man" and the second "Tennessee Shad." These books are well known to Lawrenceville students and were popular when they were written, over 40 years ago.

SAM GOLDWYN, all full of health, is back from Saratoga Springs and New York, where he and his Frances spent a month. He tells me that his son, Young Sammy, is now a lieutenant, having graduated from O. C. S. You bet Sam is proud of him, and well he might be, because that Sammy is a grand boy. One bit of business I did hear from Sam, Sr., is that James Thurber is going to assist in the preparation of "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," based on the series of short Thurber stories. This movie gets going in March with Danny Kaye as the star. Sam has made a lot of money with the Kaye pictures, which have all been swell comedies.

RICHARD JAECKEL, just back from overseas, is very thankful that his ship had engine trouble. They were stranded for 50 days off Okinawa while the rest of the convoy were sunk the day before V-J Day, and if Richard's particular ship had not had to put up at Okinawa for repairs, he might also have been lost. He was a long time getting back to Hollywood, and when he's out of the Merchant Marine, you'll find him right back at 20th Century-Fox, where he is one of the most popular of the young actors despite the fact he made so few pictures

A SLIGHT SHUDDER went through my typewriter as I started to write "Home Stretch," a horse racing epic, which is cute Nancy Guild's next movie. Why the shudder? I'm not telling the reason—but believe me, it isn't good! Anyway, Nancy seems to be winning in her career, for after looking at her rushes in "Somewhere in the Night," Darryl Zanuck has decided that she's ready for a leading role. Instead of "dolling" Nancy up like another typical Hollywood soubrette, he is insisting that she retain that natural pictorial charm that won her a contract when she was still a schoolgirl.

IF MRS. SESSUE HAYAKAWA wants to locate her husband, as she stated in an interview printed in the Stars and Stripes, she may be interested in a letter we received from Lt. Kenneth Crane, Signal Corps Photographic Center, Long Island City, New York, in which he said he can assure Mrs. Hayakawa that the Japanese actor, Sessue Hyakawa, is very much alive and in the best of health. "Hayakawa is a little but heavier than when he played in pictures," writes Lt. Crane, "and looks like the war has had no ill effect on him. For nine months I was stationed in Paris. He used to have dinner at a resturant run by Mr. Nam. The address is Mr. Chong Nam, 5 Rue Colysus, Paris VIII, France."

I HAVE HEARD many discussions of "Cass Timberlane," Sinclair Lewis' latest book. Some of the Lewis fans say it is not up to his standard —others say it is the best thing he's done since "Babbitt." No matter how it's judged from a literary standpoint, it is mighty good reading and has climbed into the best seller class without any trouble. Arthur Hornblow is getting it ready at M-G-M and he is looking for an unknown girl to play Jinny opposite the Judge, the respectable leading citizen, played by Spencer Tracy. It is being adapted by John O'Hara and Sonja Levien. Lana Turner wouldn't be bad for Jinny.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Coke Miller, who came here a short time ago to join the J. Walter Thompson Agency, and Mary Baker, Sam Jaffe's agency partner, are getting married. He's already ordered the engagement ring, and the happy event will take place as soon as her divorce is final; Mrs. Xavier Cugat, former wife of the orchestra leader, broke her hip and is in the hospital. He's been a constant visitor; Hal Wallis has put in a bid for Errol Flynn's new book. I wonder, wonder, wonder if Warners will approve? Deanna Durbin, who isn't making many public appearances these days, celebrated her birthday with her husband, Felix Jackson, at Mocambo; the silly grin on Turhan Bey's face was changed when Lana Turner walked into a night spot with Bob Hutton.

JACKIE COOGAN'S friends turned out in full force for his opening night at Slapsy Maxie's, and they have kept coming every other night to see "The Kid." She's wondering what's going to happen next; Sally Blane Foster and her little daughter are here from Mexico City to spend the holidays with her sister, Loretta Young. Saw Loretta at Margaret Ettinger's cocktail party for Muriel Babcock. It was a very gay and festive affair with many of the radio and movie fold present. Gracie Allen, all done up in a new brown suit, was busy getting copy, she said, for her column.

FRANK COSTELLO hailed a cab outside Monte Carlo the other day and chatted with the driver all the way to his destination. At the end of the trip the cabbie, Edward Waters, grinned and said: "Don't leave anything behind this time." The last time Costello rode in Waters' cab he left $27,200 in the back seat—and Waters got a $4000 tip for finding it. (The government, incidentally, has the rest of the $27,200.) . . . Wayne Morris, the film actor, has to slim down before he can be a movie glamor boy again . . . TOWN'S NEWEST HOBBY: Ice cream soda "benders" at Monte's-on-the-Park, next door to the Plaza. They give you bottles of charged water free with every soda served, and its practically the ice cream counterpart of the all-day sucker . . . Pat Clarke, here to do a Broadway show, has the local wolves terribly confused. Her line is faster than any of theirs . . . G. He had Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman shoot a fake (and very funny) ending for the occasion . . . Lois De Fee's husband, Hugh Roper, acts as her assistant when she appears on the burlesque circuit. WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—Now that Iran is in the fire I would like to recount an episode which would seem to indicate that the Iranians never were under many misapprehensions about the noble intentions of Russia.

This Asiatic country, which used to be called Persia before they started changing the name of everything, including New York's Sixth ave., protested great affection for the USSR, but it was strictly on the lip. It knew it was going to get the business as soon as Russia got ready.

This came out during a visit to Tehran, by the House Subcommittee on War Dept. Appropriations, which toured the world to see how we were spending our money—and saw. The Congressman were ushered up to the peacock throne for an audience with the Shah.

After going rah, rah for the Shah, or however you address a ruler, Reps. J. Buell Snyder of Pennsylvania, Albert J. Engel of Michigan, Joe Hendricks of Florida, George H. Mahon of Texas and Harve Tibbott of Pennsylvania got down to serious discussion.

Through an interpreter, the Shah said he spoke a little English but was not too confident of his fluency. He suggested the discussion be continued through an interpreter. This was okay with our fellows because about all the Persian they know is "Wanna buy a rug?"

THE TALK got around to international chummyness and the Shah said his country wanted very much to have the friendship of the United States.

"We have two friends now," he said. "They are Russia and Britain. It is very nice to have two friends, but it is even nicer to have three friends."

Rep. Snyder asked the Shah if he thought Russia or Britain had any imperialistic aims in his neighborhood. The Shah said he did not think it would be good policy to answer the question—officially anyway.

"Well," persisted Snyder, "do you think the United States has any imperialistic ambitions?"

The result was startling. The Shah forgot all about his interpreter. In perfect English—and a vehemence that almost lifted the visitors from their seats—he shouted:

"In the language of your country, 'gosh, no!'"

FURTHERMORE, the Shah continued the rest of the conversation in English—getting a lot off his chest which may be better unrepeated.

SO MANY of our guys have been decorated by the British there is even talk of giving Ickes the Order of the Bath—that we returned the compliment the other day. President Truman called four distinguished Britons to the White House to be medalled.

Lt. Gen. Sir Gordon MacReady, commander of the British Army Staff; Admiral of the Fleet Sir James Somerville, head of the British Admiralty delegation here; and Air Marshal Douglas Colyer, head of the RAF delegation, were given the Legion of Merit, Degree of Commander. Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, head of the British Joint Staff Mission, was given the Distinguished Service Medal, which is higher.

Parenthetically, the British have so many missions here it's a wonder they don't open a mission school.

The citations were read off by the President—and glowing they were indeed. All the recipients replied with something polite and orthodox until it came the turn of Adm. Somerville.

The seagoing knight fingered his decoration, then said:

"Mr. President, I have often wondered who won the war. But, after reading this citation, I see I did!"

ONE OF the greatest performances I have ever witnessed was staged by the Banshees luncheon in New York the other day. Mr. Caswell Adams, the eminent entrepreneur, found himself in need of an opening act so he scurried around the Waldorf seeing who might be registered.

He returned with a fellow in a blaring sports coat. When Bugs Baer, the toastmaster, asked who his find might be, Mr. Adams shrugged and said:

"I dunno—some kind of singer, I think. He was registered as Bing Crosby!"

Anyway, this Crosby got up and sang a folk song—a Swedish lullaby, I think—the words of which sounded like "Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-Ral." For a non-Swede he did pretty good.

A while later we brought on Morton Downey, who plunked his weight on a steel-reinforced piano seat and gurgled:

"That young fellow in the jockey suit who was just given an audition tried to sing 'Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-R a l.' I will now sing it as it should be sung."

Mr. Downey then gave it everything he had—including subtle nuances in which he lifted the huge grand piano clear off the floor and banged it down so hard the stage rocked.

That Downey is one of the greatest piano-movers I have ever heard.

The Brighter Side

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

By Damon Runyon

During George Holland's vacation, the Boston Evening American presents a daily article by Damon Runyon, famous short-story writer and novelist.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—I have done business in a small way for many years with the internationally famous jewelry house of Cartier. I go back with it to the time when the clerks wore striped trousers and morning coats and the atmosphere in the Fifth ave. establishment was of such quiet and decorum that one afternoon when a customer inadvertently sneezed very loudly, two clerks swooned in horror.

I know Monsieur Jules Glaenzer, the manager, one of the most celebrated first nighters, bon vivants and man-about-town generally of his day and a nice fellow at that. I had a nodding acquaintance with a salesman for 20 years or more until he discovered that I was not Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, or George either.

In short, I may be said to be reasonably familiar with the establishment because years ago a friend gave me a nice wrist watch made by Cartier's and the exigencies of wear and tear and accident have sent me there on occasion to leave the watch for repairs. I know that the code of the house provides for an examination of the situation by its watch experts which may take one or two or even three weeks, and then you receive an elegant engraved form letter stating the extent of the damage as revealed by the clinic and what it will cost you for the repairs, also the time that will be required to make them.

NOW YOU WHO just chuck your invalid watch across the counter of the nearest repair shop and say to the man, "This damn thing won't run," and he gives you a tag that permits you to return in a week or so and get the revived timepiece, paying a dollar six-bits, may consider the above procedure just so much fol-de-rol, but personally I have always liked it. I have always enjoyed thinking of my maimed little watch as the center of a conference of watch master minds peering and conjecturing like medical men over a subject on an examination table.

"The ad-jet-gay on the oo-sorray is mal-adjusted," I like to think of one expert saying of my watch while another argues:

"No, in my opinion its the weewus of the kasavus."

And then the report to me:

"Messrs. Cartier present their respectful compliments to Mr. Damon Runyon" (this is the form, folks) "and beg to advise that the watch left with them will, in order to be satisfactory, require the necessary work detailed on the annexed sheet.

"This form when returned, duly signed, will be Cartier's authorization to proceed accordingly and their best attention can be assured. "R. S. V. P."

Well, the last time I left the watch there was about three weeks ago and I have just received the form letter as above with the following additional gossip:

WRD: 566294. Rectangular gold tank watch on gold bracelet.

Cleaning and overhauling movement	$18.50
Replacing the worn out mainspring	4.50
Replacing the stem-detente and repairing the sapphire winding crown	9.50
Refinishing the dial	4.00
Replacing the chipped crystal	3.75
	40.25

Time required: 6 months.

NOW I HAVE no protest or criticism to offer on any of the above estimates. I approve them all. But what impresses me more than anything else is Cartier's attitude toward the element of time—the easy assumption that six months from now all will be jake, as we used to say—that I will be around to get my watch.

I have been worrying about where I am going to be from one day to another and about what is going to happen from one week to the next. So have millions of other persons. Reconversion. Inflation. Unemployment. World War III. All these topics have agitated my mind. I have been awakening in the morning saying to myself, anything can happen in this atomic age. I go to bed at night saying to myself, I hope what is going to happen will not happen while I am asleep.

BUT CARTIER'S calmly says, come around in six months and get your watch. I am sure if they thought there was going to be trouble they would get it out in one or two or three months. Well, in four.

Damon Runyon presents his respectful compliments to Messrs. Cartier and says Okay, boys, go ahead with the job on the red kettle or watch, even though for six months he has to forego the pleasure of knowing the right time. (Chorus; did you ever, Runyon?)

Gen. Geiger Raps Army, Navy Merger

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (INS)—Lt. Gen. Geiger, commander of the Fleet Marine Force, today told the Senate military affairs committee the plan for merger of the armed forces is "nothing more than a pantographic enlargement of the present War Department organization."

The "real meat" of the proposal is for the independent status of the air forces," he said. But, he added, the piloted bomber will become "obsolete" in the next war and the strategic air force would rapidly pass out of the picture.

Marcia King Weds in Quincy on Dec. 29

HOLIDAY FASHIONS were very much in evidence among the post deb set making merry at the Copley Plaza Oval Room the other evening. Blonde and stunning Hope Noyes wore a winter white wool dirndl appliqued with purple and pink petunias as she and her date joined friends for supper.

Post deb Emily Garritt of West Newton, lovely in a soft gray wool with a jeweled belt, and Sally Delano of Waban were double dating a couple of handsome Army officers and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Edgerly (Sue Chapin) were celebrating his return from the service. Sue wore a black frock printed with clusters of pink carnations.

Sada Paine, a striking blonde, wore single orchids on the beautiful honey satin dress in which she made her debut a few weeks ago, as she danced with her Navy date, and Marie Sisk, escorted by a Navy beau, chose a taupe pencil line skirt topped by a gay striped blouse. Blonde and curly-headed Janet McKey wore a black and white checked taffeta suit.

Luckman Made Vice-President Of Lever Bros.

Appointment of Charles Luckman of Chicago, a University of Illinois graduate in 1931, as executive vice-president of Lever Brothers Co., a newly created office, was announced yesterday by Francis A. Countway, president of the concern. The new executive will assume office at the company plant, 50 Memorial drive, Cambridge, on Jan. 1, when he will move his home from Chicago to Boston.

Underneath yesterday's announcement by Pres. Countway

CHARLES LUCKMAN
New Lever Bros. Executive

was a success story which began in early days of the depression when Luckman, born at Kansas City, Mo., in 1909 and trained in college as an architect, emerged into a world where, because of the times, there was little building construction.

He took instead what he thought was a temporary job in the advertising department of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co., but later was transferred to the sales department and began to rise rapidly. First assigned to Chicago's South Side, he subsequently was placed in charge of soap sales for the entire city.

In 1933 he was appointed district manager in charge of Wisconsin and in 1934 divisional manager in charge of soap sales in six states, with headquarters at Cincinnati. A year later he joined the Pepsodent Co. as sales manager, in 1936 became vice-president in charge of sales, and in 1937 vice president in charge of sales and advertising.

The next year he was named vice-president and general manager, was advanced to executive vice-president, and in 1943 became president.

In July, 1944, through purchase, the Pepsodent Co. became a division of Lever Brothers Co.

Luckman's wife, the former Harriet M. McElroy, was a fellow student at the University of Illinois. They have three sons.

Vets' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—My husband has been in the Navy for two years, six months of which were spent overseas. His mother, a widow, is entirely dependent on him. Can you estimate the number of points he has and what his chances are of being discharged? L. C., Revere

A—I figure he has about 25 points and needs 59 for discharge at present, 38 after Jan. 1.

Q—My son wrote that he is sailing for home on an A. P. A. What kind of ship is that? How long would it take from Okinawa to California? F. C. H., Somerville.

A—Type ship is a large Navy transport and might take anywhere from two to three weeks to make voyage, depending on stop-overs.

Q—If a man enlisted in the Coast Guard on the West Coast and is now en route home from the Pacific for discharge, must he report to induction point to be mustered out or could he come directly to Boston? C. M. S., Salem.

A—Government pays travel to point of enlistment. Most likely he will be discharged on West Coast.

Q—I was recently discharged from the service and find that the government has been making overpayments to my wife on allotments. We have received a letter stating that the amount is several hundred dollars and must be paid back. I am earning a small salary and this is the first I knew about it. What agency should I contact regarding this matter? W. B., Boston

A—I would say that your best bet is to contact the Office of Dependency and Benefits, 600 Commonwealth ave., Boston, as soon as possible, and see what arrangements can be made.

Q—My son was reported missing in March of this year. If they don't find any trace of him, how long does the War Dept. list him as missing? D. S., Bangor, Me.

A—A man reported missing in action is carried on War Dept. records in that status for a year, unless returned to military control before that time. At the end of the year, if he has not been found, the case is reviewed and if there is still insufficient evidence to make a finding of death, he continues to be listed as missing. There is no set period of time in which a man may be listed as missing. He is carried in that status until there is acceptable evidence or information to the contrary.

Where can a veteran obtain a discharge button? T. M., Newton.

A—Lapel buttons for discharged veterans may be obtained from any recruiting office in the First Service Command.

Q—I have recently married a soldier who has to support his mother. If he applies for family allowance for me, how much will be taken from his mother? G. F., Roslindale.

A—Nothing will be deducted from the mother's check. The soldier contributes $5 more a month himself, and you will receive your $50 and his mother's payments will continue as they are. This makes a total deduction of $27 from the soldier's pay each month.

Q—I was discharged from the service Oct. 9, 1945, and received my first installment of mustering out pay. I have two more checks due me, but have not received the second one yet. What can I do to trace this? S. E., Burlington.

A—It is suggested that you write to the finance office of the separation center from which you were discharged, giving full information as to your Army serial number and date of discharge.

Marshall

and wrote out a message in longhand. I had thought Stark called me back, but on checking I find I called him back. The effect of our conversation was that he wished me to add to my messages, 'Show this to your naval officers.'

"There was some talk of typing the message, but the decision was that there was no time to type it. Bratton took the messages and I asked him about the time involved in getting them off. I sent him back for estimates and I sent him and Col. Bundy back a second time to make sure."

Marshall disputed previous testimony before the committee and the Army board of inquiry, published last August, that he telephoned the warning message to Gen. MacArthur in the Philippines.

"I did not telephone anywhere," he said.

Marshall also said he gave no instructions on the method of sending the messages, that it was the business of the message center to get them out "by the most expeditious" means.

He said he did not know until long afterward the message to Lt. Gen. Walter G. Short, Army commander at Pearl Harbor, went to San Francisco by Western Union, thence by RCA cable to Hawaii.

Marshall related that Stark recalled asking him whether the Army had need of Navy facilities. Stark told him he replied it did not, Marshall said, "and he must be right."

"Asked with whom he talked at or from the War Dept. on the morning war broke out, Marshall explained: "My time was engrossed in reading this lengthy message and nobody could talk to me while I was reading it."

He remarked he was "much taken aback" at the time lost in reading the long diplomatic message before reaching the one referring to "the critical time" of 1 p. m.

Marshall said he didn't recall any discussion about the corresponding time in the Philippines or Hawaii. The question, he said, was the importance of the message and what to tell the overseas commanders.

Committee Counsel William Mitchell asked if the Army staff was set up so if Marshall could not be reached, some other officer who knew the contents of the decoded Jap messages could have sent a warning.

Marshall listed War Secy. Stimson and Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, head of the war plans division. Gerow has told the committee he assumed responsibility for any War Department failure to send additional warnings after Short advised he had established only a sabotage alert in Hawaii.

Marshall said Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, then head of Army intelligence, could not have sent a "command message" with instructions. But he did have authority to pass on information, Marshall added.

Marshall referred to Mrs. Marshall's engagement book to help him remember the evening of Dec. 6. He said they did not go out for dinner, calling or to the movies.

Marshall reiterated he thought the Hawaiian forces were on the alert and were equipped to handle an attack before the Japs struck. The best and most careful plans, however, can go wrong, he commented, adding:

"We spent two and a half years planning the invasion of Normandy and when that came off we didn't have enough LST's (landing craft tanks). I presume had that failed there would have been an investigation."

Mitchell said he couldn't understand why there were so many indications "everybody was on his toes" about a possible air attack up until "the critical days when that fear faded away."

Marshall said the danger hadn't faded but it was a matter of spreading the butter thin. The Philippines got the priority on planes and materiel and the Army thught the Hawaiian Islands were "reasonably prepared." Reconnaissance and other methods, he said, "showed the Japs' evil intentions" in the Philippine area.

10,000 Pupils in 43 Schools Compete in History Contest

Today was American history day in 43 public and parochial high schools of Boston with 10,000 students taking the intercity tests for the Hearst newspapers awards.

Examination papers, with 20 questions on American history, were passed out and the first lap in the annual contest was on.

The time limit of the examinations is two hours, with an extra 15 minutes in which to write a brief essay on some vital phase of American history.

Winners in this intracity contest—there will be three chosen by the respective history teachers in each school—will have their papers submitted to a board of examiners by Supt. Arthur L. Gould and the Rev. William J. Daly, diocesan supervisor of parochial schools. The pupils submitting the three best examinations will be eligible for the city final tests at Faneuil Hall, Dec. 17.

Winners of this test will divide the local $1000 Victory Bond prizes and will be eligible to compete for national awards of $25,000.

Breast of Veal Makes Fine Roast for Sunday

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

WE'RE ALL DELIGHTED to find our old favorites in the meat markets again—and perhaps, for some folks, there is a temptation to fall back into the old routine of serving roasts, steaks and chops most of the time. But how about all the other cuts of meat we learned to use when the more familiar ones were scarce?

We've tried these others and found that they make good eating—so why not continue to serve them occasionally? In this way we can enjoy more of the variety which meat offers; and give the budget a break at the same time.

Take the meat on today's menu—a breast of veal. This is one of the less familiar veal cuts, but it makes a very nice roast, especially when the bones are removed and the meat is made into a compact, easy-to-serve roll

MENU

Roast Veal Breast
Glazed Sweet Potatoes
Cranberry Sauce
Fresh Broccoli
Raw Carrot and Pineapple Salad
Rye Bread Butter or Margarine
Cottage Pudding Fruit Sauce
Hot Coffee

GOOD ROAST VEAL

The accepted method of roasting all meats at low temperatures makes it possible to roast any good-sized cut of veal satisfactorily, because the long, slow cooking softens the connective tissues and makes the meat deliciously tender. The roast may be improved in flavor and juiciness by the addition of extra fat, either by larding the meat (which means to insert thin strips of fat with a larding needle) or by laying slices of bacon or other fat across the top of the roast during cooking.

The procedure in cooking a veal roast is just the same as for other roast meats; use an open pan, add no water, cook in a slow oven. Here are the exact directions:

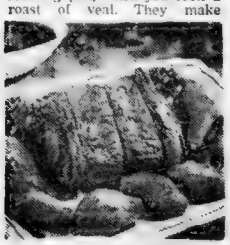
ROLLED BREAST OF VEAL

Have ribs and breast bone removed from veal breast and meat rolled and tied. Season with salt and pepper. Place on rack in an open, shallow pan. Lay bacon slices over top of roast, if desired. Insert meat thermometer into roast so that the bulb is in the center of the thickest part. Do not add water; do not cover. Place in slow oven (300 deg. F.) and roast until done, allowing about 40 to 45 minutes per pound for roasting. Meat thermometer will register 170 deg. F. Roast veal is always served well done

WHAT TO SERVE WITH VEAL

Sweet potatoes and cranberries are included on today's menu because they're favorite seasonal foods, and also because they complement the mild flavor of the veal. Other foods which might be featured with a veal roast are baked stuffed tomatoes or scalloped tomatoes, oven-browned potatoes, whole kernel corn, apricots (plain or spiced), oranges (broiled or in salad), and glazed carrots.

One last word. Always save the brown drippings from the roasting pan, when you cook a roast of veal. They make scrumptious gravy If you don't wish to serve gravy at the first meal, use it for reheating slices of the leftover roast, or in a savory veal and vegetable pie.



Roast Breast of Veal

GLAZED SWEET POTATOES

1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ cup water
4 boiled sweet potatoes
3 tbsp butter or margarine

Combine sugar and water in small saucepan and bring to boiling point. Peel and cut potatoes in halves lengthwise or in ½ inch slices. Dip potatoes in syrup, arrange in greased shallow baking dish. Pour remaining syrup over potatoes and dot with butter. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 15 minutes, until glaze is formed, basting 3 or 4 times with the syrup. Makes 6 servings.

COTTAGE PUDDING

½ cup shortening 1 cup sugar
1 egg ½ tsp. lemon extract
1¾ cups flour ½ tsp. salt
2½ tsp. baking powder
2-3 cup milk

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar; add egg and lemon extract; beat thoroughly. Add flour, sifted with salt and baking powder, alternately with milk; beat well after each addition. Bake in greased, 8-inch square pan in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 to 45 minutes. Serve warm with lemon, chocolate, or butterscotch sauce; with sweetened fresh or canned fruit; or with grape jelly and whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Getting Along With People

The need to get along with people has never been so great as it is today. And the only way to get along with people is by consideration of their feelings. MRS. BEECKMAN

YOU CAN'T change the spots on a leopard . . . but leopard skin used for trimming a costume can certainly change the appearance of a woman into stunning attraction. Lovely Warner star Angela Green looks particularly appealing in her hat, coat and muff ensemble picked up trickily with linear-leopard skin adornment . . . in just the right accent to keep the silhouette slim and sleek.—R. Choose Perfume to Fit Personality

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

ONE OF AMERICA'S TOPFLIGHT fashion designers has worked out an unfailing formula for you to follow in choosing perfume for someone else . . . wonderful news for your Christmas gifting, since perfume is such a universal choice for holiday remembering.

It's only natural that this gifted lady knows the perfume a woman would desire because she so thoroughly understands the relationship between fashions and fragrances. Her theory? It's simple and logical. With her years of dressing American women superbly to their type . . . she says: "Look at a woman's clothes, and instantly you will know what type of perfume she uses."

So go thou and do likewise! Study a woman's type of dress and then put this fashion designer's perfume theory into practice. Just to own a bottle of her perfume is like having a calling card with a royal crest on it . . since the very mention of her name is indicative of the best in clothes as well as cosmetics.

Here's her chart which should help you judge each type of woman by her clothes and the selection of a complementing and perfect perfume that's as distinctive as the woman who's to wear it.

THE RIGHT FRAGRANCE FOR EACH TYPE

There is the strictly tailored woman who swears by her classic suits . . . her efficient over-the-shoulder bags . . . who is unerringly pleased with a crisp, sophisticated fragrance with an amber undertone.

And for the woman who loves a complete expression of femininity in all her costumes there is a happy, light and heavenly blend of provocative floral fragrance.

The distinctive woman you find constantly in dramatic black simplicity will be intrigued with a mysterious challenging fragrance.

The youthful type, keynoting her casual costumes with billowy skirts, off-face rollers, will adopt for her own the soft, gay young-hearted perfume with its subtle haunting spice.

The unmistakably chic woman . . . who focuses attention on dazzling cocktails and theater costumes will forever treasure the golden fragrance of this golden-moments choice, available only in the unique feminine head bottle encrusted with 22-karat gold . . a prize possession for the ultra-ultra woman.

For the names of these personality picked perfumes, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A VERY SIMPLE formula to help you select your gift perfumes so they'll be perfect for the personality you're remembering is this one . . . study a woman's type of clothes and choose your perfume for her accordingly. If she dresses in clothes as stunning as this Carnegie original . . . you would naturally give her a scent that is as challenging as the daring cut of this black dinner gown . . . both a little bit of all right in their respective fields.

His Love-Making Classical

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have been in love for ten years with a swell fellow, whom I've known for years, but as we both were poor and didn't have much education, we put off getting married. He proposed and I accepted him six years ago. He wanted to make something of himself before he married and wanted me to be proud of him.

He went to a city a thousand miles away and when the war came on he was deferred on account of his eyes. He got a job in a defense plant and saved his money which in five years piled up to $8000. He studied evenings and on Sundays.

Here's my problem. He came home a month ago and how he has changed. He's not a snob and says he still loves all of us. The change is in his speech. He uses a vocabulary that we can't understand, talks like a lawyer. Even when we are alone and he makes love to me, his language is a mixture of Shakespeare, Daniel Webster and Franklin D. Roosevelt. Please advise me what to do. Do you think I ought to take a course in English? E.

You tell me that in spite of the lapse of a decade and the young man's great success, you're both in love—what's to prevent an immediate wedding? In the words of the Mark Twain story, you too "could not have been idle," since you have been able to trace the sources of your boy friend's classical love-making. That sentence, sister, was a give-away. I wonder if further study on your part is really necessary.

Black Dress Beautiful: Grand Strategic Ally

By BETTINA BEDWELL

IN THE MIDDLE of a room full of blazing color, that black dress has a strategy which steals the show. That is, if it happens to be a black dress with charm and delicacy to it. For the holidays, ladies who know this are likely to get themselves a stunning new black dress.

I have picked one that has everything, to show you the idea I have in mind. This is a dress from Carrie Munn, a simple model of black crepe with sleeves that are rounded and flaring at the top, a slim waist, and a skirt that is softly flared at the front.

The dress is trimmed with black lace set on worked black satin bands, in graceful curved lines on the waist. Long black satin gloves with bows on them and a black felt hat trimmed with satin complete this outfit.

The state continued to roll up individual sales beyond its $130,000,000 quota, with the securities division in Boston's financial district being the first unit to double its quota. Workers in 150 security house teams reported volume of $63,660,340 through Tuesday, or 212.2 per cent of the goal.

Phony War Due Only to Weather

NUERNBERG, Dec. 7 (AP)—Hitler's armies were poised for the invasion of the Low Countries and France Nov. 7, 1939, but the attack was postponed six months because of bad weather, official German records disclosed at the war crimes trial today.

While the rest of the world spoke sarcastically of "a phony war," the Germany military machine was "waiting only for favorable weather," according to records.

British prosecutors turned their evidence against German military and naval leaders among the 20 top-ranking Hitlerites accused as war criminals, pointing out their part in plans for the invasion while Hitler deceitfully told Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg he had no plans to attack them.

The fifth column conquest of Norway and Denmark was only a prelude to the invasion a month later, evidence showed.

German naval orders reveal German warships and camouflaged troop transports carried British flags and signals.

'Queen for a Day' Makes Boston Audiences Happy

Out of the audience at the RKO-Boston yesterday they selected the "Queen for a Day"—

And pretty Violet Lindsay, from Somerville, is already loaded with clothes, perfumes and gifts for her jaunt through the best entertainment the town affords.

This was the show that was broadcast, too. And who should be on hand to felicitate and to sing to the petite winner but handsome Phil Regan, in person, hero of the K-B's current film, "Sunbonnet Sue," in which he co-stars with Gail Storm.

Phil sang (to Miss Lindsay) "Donegal"—and it brought down the house. Mr. Regan was cheered in the film as well, which gives an idea that the audience loved it. M. X. S.

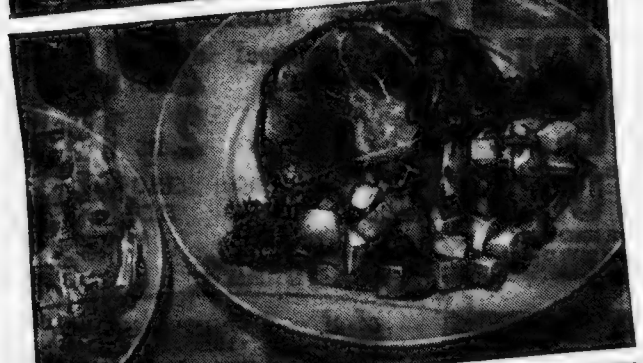
IT'S NOT A MEAL WITHOUT POTATOES

STATE OF MAINE POTATOES



State of Maine Potatoes, from a 1945 crop of top quality, are in your markets. Firm bodied, full flavored, mealy textured, favored for all-purpose cooking. Insist on State of Maine Potatoes.

Here's good company—piping hot ham and diced potatoes. What a combination for taste satisfaction and rich nourishment! Potatoes are an energy food, supply liberal quantities of Vitamins B_1 and C and needed Minerals at such low cost that they are "life savers" for families who must watch their food budgets closely. Serve healthful potatoes at least once every day.

Lavishness Rules 'Waldorf'

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Week-end at the Waldorf," MGM's gaudy cornucopia of plenty at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, may be described as spewacky . . . to lift the word right out of the script's by-line. Sam and Bella Spewack did the script, which was "suggested by a story by Vicki Baum."

Damon Runyon was saying in a swell column the other day that a play or a film that is successful at the box office is a good play or a good picture in his book. On those terms, "Week-end at the Waldorf" is a whale of a picture, a lalapalooza of a production. On the strength of its marquee alone . . . GINGER ROGERS-WALTER PIDGEON-LANA TURNER-VAN JOHNSON . . . is tiring, two-hour-long, superbly-produced picture is gaited to be one of the season's top winners financially!

But . . . and here is where I part company with one of the best of my journalistic betters . . . "Week-end at the Waldorf," despite slick performances by Miss Rogers and Pidgeon and an overall production that is the berries, is not a good picture. It misses the boat.

Miss Turner and Van Johnson, toast of the teen-agers, are not so happily cast as a Park Avenue-minded public stenographer with a Tenth Avenue address and a doomed war-wounded young man in whom Lana arouses the determination to live. Edward Arnold, as an unctious promoter with a yen for Lana; Keenan Wyn as a very unaware cub reporter and New England's Phyllis Thaxter as a jumpy bride-to-be show the sawdust-stuffing in the script. The late Robert Benchley makes a lot more than the script allowed of a dog-loving gossip columnist characterization.

Wrestling Fan Leads Way To Rowdy Renaissance

By AUSTEN LAKE

AH-H-H-H! THERE'S GOOD NEWS TONIGHT! A balcony fan heaved a chair on the noggin of Doc Len Hall, one of Paul Bowser's mat elves, during the skin rodeo at the Boston Arena Wednesday evening. It took a divot from Doc's scalp and he was revived later with ammonia crackers. It stopped the show!

Austen Lake

This is deplorably crude technique and far below the lofty standards of ruffianism a decade ago when Boston fans enjoyed their last rowdy renaissance and found a healthful outlet for spiritual poisons by kicking contestants in the face or throwing empty drinking flasks, hardware and chair arms. The Boston fans of that period acquired considerable skill in rowdyism but rarely damaged the performers to the extent where the show had to be topped.

In the interim the fans have grown rusty and therefore must be pardoned for nearly killing Doc. And I am certain that the fan whose inadvertent aim skulled the wrestler would be quick to apologize for his ineptitude in not merely temporarily crippling the athlete. Such courtesy was the custom in the good old days.

Gentility Has Slumped

I REMEMBER WHEN IT WAS considered good form for Boston patrons to take full part in the games following World War I. The paying guests were granted discretionary poking privileges at the athletes, with the proviso, of course, that they accept the inherent risk of being poked back. So there was the time when Eddie Shore of the Boston Bruins and Babe Pratt of the New York Rangers were busy busting each other back and forth in the penalty box at the Garden. And at the height of the melee some Boston fans helped themselves to a piece of the fight by fetching Pratt a lick here and a sock there.

You may recall that one of the fans pitched a wild punch that caught Shore on the cheekbone, and the fan said, "I regret deeply my inadvertence in landing you a wallop intended for wats's-name," to which Shore, always the cultured gentleman in such matters, replied that "twernt nawthin'," considering the untabulated total of jolts, biffs and busts he had received during his long career. That sock is on the house," said Eddie generously.

Such fine gentilities have lapsed during the decadence of roughhouse and cannot be revived easily. And I am sure that if Dr. Hall could find the Arena fan who conked him with the chair he would hasten to assure him of no hard feelings and merely content himself with a roundhouse haymaker to the fan's whiskers just to bring things back to even.

That was the way it was in the good old Boston day when the ring parishioners liked to hoist the skirts of their overcoats and kick the contestants in the features as they sailed through the ropes and cruised around the concrete floor. But the breed of wrestling fans has softened in direct proportion as our sports have grown more formalized, and it is a long time since the fans warmed down to take part in the grand wrestling finales to take indiscriminate busts at friend or foe alike.

So Wednesday evening's episode may be the first sign of a return of co-operative sport in Boston when it was not unusual for a hockey player, in the midst of his duties, to reach over the barrier and spank a customer on the nose. And I recall, with wistful whiffs of rosemary and lavender, the night that Lynn Patrick of the Rangers halted in mid-flight and belted a Bostonian in a rinkside box for some disparagement spoken or implied. And before that Lionel Connacher of the Leafs smacked somebody in passing through the players's runway.

Wholesome Outlet for All

AT THE TIME, DURING THE height of the money depression, the fans needed something to smooth their internal sufferings and it was considered very wholesome for the customers to take part in the ructions. Because there was very little left of the co-operative games in which our citizens, both male and female, could expel their acidosis by biffing somebody for something which at the moment seemed very vital but the reasons for which they forgot immediately afterward.

Wrestling and hockey were two of our most co-operative sports where it was wholly within the jurisdiction of the fans and athletes to wallop each other on impulses dictated by individual conscience. These sports provide no penalty, or at least inflict none, perhaps on the assumption that these are private fights, mutually provoked, and therefore not subject to outside intrusion.

There was that night, some years ago, when a front box client grabbed a Canadian by the slack of his shirt as he came scooting near the sideboards. And that time when a lady fan bounced her loaded handbag flush in the alien puss of some forgotten player. Nor did the hockey fans of the period think anything of spilling over the fences on occasion and skid toward the center of any rink fight in the hope of landing one or more socks on enemy chins as their contribution to home town loyalty.

Being generally closer to the action the hockey and wrestling patrons may feel themselves a more intimate part of the shows than in football and in baseball. And in the hysteria of the moment they are apt to mistake themselves for the actors and be impelled to play impromptu but parts with fists and boots. But even here we have slumped below the fine old standards of past years when the Boston fans fired hunks of pipe, or wrenched off chair arms and bits of hardware.

There was a faint, nostalgic whiff of the glorious past lately when one of Boston's patrons slipped off his overshoe and scaled it down on the scaffold during a dramatic point of a mat opera. But I am told the fan called later at the box office to retrieve the gumshoe. Which gives you an idea of how our rowdy ructions have sissyfied.

Still it is encouraging to know that the Arena fan who skulled Doc Hall with a chair, didn't call around to collect his implement. No fan in the good old rugged days ever called around for their bottles, tobacco tins or chair arms. So we may be on the verge of another swing of the pendulum to a rowdy renaissance. Eh wot?

Braves Farm Gets Cecil, Ex-Sox $25,000 Hurler

By JOE CASHMAN

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7—Red Cecil, who cost the Red Sox more than $25,000 when they purchased him from the San Diego club late in 1944, became a member of the Braves family when he was sold today by the Louisville club to Indianapolis. The latter club is very closely linked with the Braves under their new eight-club farm system, completion of which was revealed a couple of days ago. Thus Cecil can be moved upriver to the Tribe whenever it decides it can utilize his great talents as a righthanded pitcher.

The deal has some unusual angles.

The large Mr. Cecil proved of little use to the Red Sox when they used him late in '41 in their final bid to stay in the flag hunt, due, so Sox followers said, to his inability to concentrate on serious work.

However, the hurler showed good form last spring with the Sox, but was later shipped to the Hose farm club at Louisville. There Cecil turned in good efforts for the Colonels under Nemo Leibold, and stood out as the club won the AA playoffs and beat Newark in the Little World Series.

Manager Leibold, however, is reported to have suggested that Rex be sold instead of being sent again to the Red ox. Hence today's deal.

Cecil now will be under the wing of Manager Bill Burwell of Indianapolis, a genius at handling pitchers. If Bill can co-ordinate Cecil's efforts, the Braves may get a 20-game winner. And Billy Southworth may be aided immeasurably in his moves to build a topflight Braves club next year.

Braves Hope for More Action at Majors' Parley

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7—This Columbus conclave ended early this afternoon and the assembled baseball army then started moving to Chicago for the major league meetings, which will continue through next Wednesday.

The Braves' bosses have discussed swaps with the Cardinals, Pirates and Phillies. They express confidence that they'll complete a few transactions in the Windy City.

Sox representatives Eddie Collins and Joe Cronin, on the other hand, frankly admit they don't expect to make any trades here or in Chicago.

"I don't see any sense in making deals at this time," explains Cronin, "I want to wait to see how many of our players in the armed forces are out when spring training starts. That will be soon enough to think of trades.

Cronin isn't the only baseball player who feels that way about it. The majority seems to share the same opinion.

General Manager John Quinn confesses that the Braves are very anxious to do business with the Cards as soon as possible but that Sam Breadon refuses to be hurried.

Messrs. Louis Perini, Joe Maney and Quinn spent hours yesterday afternoon trying to pry a player or two loose from the Mound City. The Cards' owner demanded time to think over the offers.

"I have a lot of players on my roster," Quinn quoted Breadon as saying, "but that's no guarantee I'll have them on the field next season. Maybe fellows like Enos Slaughter, Stan Musial, Jimmy Brown, Lou Klein, George Munger, Johnny Beazley, Herman Pollett and Max Lenier will still be in the service; if they are, where would I be if I sold several of our civilian players at this time?"

Minors' Shot at Happy Hints Major Showdown

By DAVIS J. WALSH

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7 (INS)—They had A. B. "Happy" Chandler, the man who should have "stood" in the U. S. Senate, riding the tumbrel before the mob today, with the gibbet and the block his apparent destination, and surrender the ominous alternative.

There was every indication that the process might be mercifully concluded at or during the joint meeting of the two major leagues in Chicago next week.

That, briefly, was the situation hereabouts as the minor league baseball meeting was made ready to be decently interred some hours before nightfall. The harassed commissioner already had departed. So had many of his bellicose opponents of high estate in the major league conference.

The man who had been called "Happy," even in the pompous atmosphere of senatorial protocols, departed the scene early—having arrived late for the convention and in no temperate state of mind.

But his was an orderly retreat, leaving in its wake a foe who was not entirely free of casualties.

These were inflicted as Chandler, knowing his number either was up or soon to be posted, stood before the National Ass'n. First he stood as a pleader for withdrawal of proposed amendments he found personally "obnoxious and offensive," and then as diagnostician who, in language as realistic as the blade of a knife, laid hack the skin of official baseball with swift, adroit thrusts.

He delivered what amounted to a philippic, growing in stature thereby while losing in vested authority.

But neither plea nor threat was efectual. He no sooner had stepped down to a patter of surplus applause following him to the door, than he was disdained by ballot. The "obnoxious" amendments—one of which virtually stripped him of his remaining power—promptly were passed by a vote of 21 to 3.

That 21-to-3 vote in early accounts was represented as a flouting of the commissioner by his minor league minions. But that was only the exterior effect. Actually, his minor league minions more often than not are owned outright by major league capital or largely dependent on it.

The vote, therefore, echoed major league sentiment, which has crystallized to a point where a showdown next week is inevitable, making the impending joint meeting one of great portent.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7—The minor leagues today backed with only two dissenting votes that bid of the Pacific Coast League to be promoted to major league status. The International and Piedmont loops were the only ones in more than 20 circuits represented to vote against the move. The major leagues take up the matter next week in their annual meeting. The convention today also voted to forbid the payment of bonuses for signing of player contracts.

Bissonette Joins Pirates

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7 (AP)—Del Bissonette, who managed the Boston Braves in the latter part of the 1944 season, today signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates as a coach. Bissonette had signed a few days ago to return to his old job as manager of the Hartford, Ct., Eastern League Club.

Bissonette became manager of the Braves when Bob Coleman resigned last season. He had been coach under Coleman during the early part of the season. Previously he had piloted Hartford for three years. In his new job he succeeds Jake Flowers, who went to the Braves as a coach yesterday.

Pesky May Quit Sox for New Job

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 7 (AP)—Lt. (jg.) Johnny Pesky, nimble Red Sox shortstop, 1942 "rookie of the year," arrived from the South Pacific yesterday and said he probably would not return to baseball. He said he was seriously considering an offer to go into the lumber business in the Pacific Northwest.

Turner to Give Pretzie Test at Arena Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

ONE WILL GET a pretty fair idea as to what ring future there is ahead for Johnny Pretzie when the Watertown heavyweight battles Jay D. Turner of Washington in a 10-round bout at a Sharkey A. A. show at the Arena tonight. Since receiving his discharge from the Army Air Corps, Pretzie has been bowling over all opposition. William Bell, Charley Lomski and Cliff Mann have been his ring victims. Other than Mann it cannot be said that Pretzie took too many risks with the type of boxers he met.

Johnny Pretzie

The public tired of seeing the former All-America champion win his bouts easily. It insisted that Pretzie step up in class and meet an opponent who would have an even chance to beat him. It was with considerable reluctance that Johnny Buckley, who manages Pretzie, accepted Turner as an opponent.

Turner is one of the old line of heavyweights. He has weathered hard bouts with Billy Conn, Tami Mauriello, Leo Oma and Elmer (Violent) Ray. He has upset a great deal of ordinary opposition.

Turner is in about the same position as Charley Weinert of Newark was when Jack Sharkey fought him twice. Weinert was a big-name fighter who was on the way down the fistic trail, while Sharkey was an inexperienced youngster with much confidence.

Weinert gave Sharkey quite a pasting in their first bout, while in the second tussle Charley won a close decision. The experience Sharkey gained in those two matches gave him some of the knowledge that later enabled him to climb to the fistic heights. Even if Pretzie should get beaten by Turner tonight, provided he is not knocked out, he will be an improved fighter the next time he goes into action.

Pretzie Relies on Punch

PRETZIE WILL rely upon raw aggressiveness and his punching power when he meets Turner. The Watertown youth hits as hard with his left hand as any of our modern heavyweights. He will find it more difficult to break through Turner's defense as the latter knows every trick of the boxing game.

Billy Conn, when in Boston as a referee, said he was of the opinion Turner will win tonight. Conn cannot see a young heavyweight like Pretzie upsetting an experienced campaigner like Turner.

I still give Pretzie a slight edge. I like these young boxers who are hungry to win fame and the money that goes with success in the ring. It is likely that Pretzie will be a 10-to-7 chance to win.

Acid Test Faces Basketball Her

By HERB FINNEGAN

Can basketball, moribund in Boston these many years, be rekindled into a ma sport here? Walter Brown and Bill Mokray of the Garden say, "Yes," and toward th end will begin their noble experiment next Thursday night.

will begin their noble experiment one week from tonight.

This is "make-or-break" year for the sport, no question. Garden officials invested $10,000 in a court last winter and were making slow progress, but progress nevertheless, when the Brooklyn College "incident" and subsequent February storms set them back to their own end zone. It was said the gambling "incident" would ruin whatever chance basketball did have of re-establishing itself here; that the Ivy Colleges would shun the Garden like a plague. But Dartmouth will appear at the Garden, Dec. 21, against HC, and other Ivy leaguers may follow suit another year. Doesn't every college boy long to play on the spacious Garden floor?

Success of the Garden schedule would be assured were Harvard and Yale to appear.

Tony Lavalle of Somerville is jumping center for Yale this season, and remember how he packed them in as a schoolboy?

And who should appear at Harvard this term but all-America Wyndol Gray from Bowling Green. Gray scored 503 points as a soph, 406 last season when he was voted the best player to appear in both Boston and Buffalo. Now the Navy has transferred him to Harvard, and Floyd Stahl is smiling again.

Those are two of the attractions Brooklyn cost the Garden this winter, so Brown and Mokray are really starting from scratch for the second time.

Their opening twin bill pairs Boston College and Manhattan, Providence College and St. Michael's of Winooski, Vt. BC, under General McClellan, is reviving the game for the first time since 1924, when Tommy Murphy, now an official, was the top shot.

There is some fine talent on the squad, including Bob Quirk, all-state guard from Manchester, N. H.; Phil Kenney, all-state from Newport, R. I.; Bob Fitzgerald, Eddie Ryan and Jim Harrington, Greater Boston boys who shone in high school. BC's biggest handicap will be lack of experience.

Later in the season will appear Rhode Island State, with another of its great teams, featuring Ken Goodwin, scholar-athlete from Somerville who made 23 points in his debut for Frank Keaney.

Walter Brown has big ideas for basketball in Boston. The interscholastic tournaments have gone over with a bang, and Brown would like to bring the Eastern intercollegiate and national intercollegiate tournaments here eventually.

If all goes well, he'll install a $10,000 court in the Arena and play two nights a week, and play there when Ice-Capades, Frolics, etc., are at the Gar

That's all in the future, h ever. This year he'll be con to popularize the game and tablish it on a permanent m sport basis.

After all, as he says, the g was founded here (Spring 1891) so why should Massa setts lag so far behind the res the nation in basketball thusiasm?

Knowing Brown and his motional bent, it would seem the game will be well establis here by the time BC conclu its season with HC at the G den, Feb. 14.

Bay State Skiers Wait Action on Mt. Wachusett

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Many skiers are wondering what has happened to the State's proposed "postwar ski project" at Mt. Wachusett, Worcester . . . Here's the latest word on this subject:

Originators of the idea were members of the Jericho Ski Club of Marlboro, headed by Norman LeDuc, who pioneered the plan with such enthusiasm that a bill was filed last year by Rep. Norman Wellen of Marlboro. The bill called for a survey of the terrain on Wachusett, to determine the advisability of erecting a lift and clearing a huge open slope on the northeast face of the mountain.

Experts have looked over the site, and are favorably impressed . . . The facts and figures must be submitted to the House by the first of the year, and an estimated cost of the project runs about $500,000. Thus, if this is okayed, Massachusetts skiers will have a major development in their own backyard.

Mt. Wachusett attracts hundreds every winter, despite its present limited facilities, since there is only one trail, plus a carriage road. We sincerely hope the above plan materializes, for the state needs more skiing centers.

(These ski columns appear in the Mon., Wed., Thurs., Fri. editions of the American, and the Sunday Advertiser.)

Would this be fair?

Can you imagine your milkman, grocer, barber or tailor charging you extra just because you were able to pay more than some people?

Of course you can't. And what a state of confusion everything would soon be in if people tried to operate that way.

Suppose the people GM workers trade with told them, "We know you make more than most industrial workers, so we're going to charge you more for everything!"

Yet this is exactly the principle UAW-CIO leaders are trying to establish in their wage demands on General Motors.

To be logical, union leaders should also say to a company that is losing money, "You're having a hard time making both ends meet, so we're suggesting a cut in wages."

Can you imagine any union leader ever making such an offer? Of course, you can't.
